WAX ON, WAX OFF:
Go As Bare-As-You-Dare This Summer
With The Help Of Designer Stripless Wax

New York, NY 2002 - Summer's here in just a few short months! And with that, expect window shops to be sporting short skirts, skimpy bikinis and tiny tank tops! Preparation is in order, and the time to begin is NOW. Yet, how do we get those silky legs, smooth underarms and barely-there bikini waxes without redness, irritation or painful ingrown hairs? Well, according to skin guru and head aesthetician at NYC's Oasis On Park Day Spa, Jaime Trompeter, Azulene Stripless Wax is the way to say goodbye to unwanted hair.

Azulene Stripless Wax, dubbed the new "designer wax," requires no strips and is flexible for strong hair in sensitive areas including the face, underarms and bikini areas. The active ingredient, azulene, is found in most essential oils and contains anti-inflammatory properties making it quite effective for soothing and calming, leaving no signs of irritation.

How it Works:

As the wax begins to dry, it encases itself around the resistant hair on the body. The wax shrinks up slightly and lifts up off the skin. Once dry, the wax is peeled off like a bandage strip. No cloth or paper strips are required. And the result? Effective hair removal with little or no skin irritation.

So be daring this summer and show as much skin as your wardrobe will allow.
